

Even This Cloud Has a Silver Lining

For some, the swirling cloud of questions surrounding the whole topic of writing one's will can be so confusing that it paralyzes the individual into inaction.

Do I really need a will? How do I get started? What will it cost? Is there a way I can remember my favorite charities in my will? Can I make changes in my will without rewriting everything? These are a few of the typical questions people ask when they think of writing their wills.

Unfortunately, inaction in this important area of one's life can lead to heartbreak and misunderstanding for one's survivors. Inaction can also compromise assets for which one worked so hard during one's lifetime. But, it need not be the case.

Perhaps the best first step one needs to take in the responsibility of writing a will is to find an attorney competent in this field. Friends, family members, one's doctor, parish priest, coworkers or neighbors are all good sources for recommendations, or you may call the Development Office for information.

A simple phone call initiates the process and the attorney will be able to answer your questions and guide you through the will writing process.

After remembering family members and special acquaintances, you may also wish to remember St. Gregory the Great parish in your will. By doing so, you will honor the memory of St. Gregory parish and further our important mission in today's world.
